

NAITA Cyber Trade Compliance

Fraud & Cyber Security Compliance Safeguarding Data in a High-Threat, High-Risk World

In a globally-connected, information-driven economy, few things are as important as data. Lose it, lose trade secrets, compromise your customers and business partners, risk litigation and jeopardize your company's future. If you're in the Aerospace and Defense (A&D) industry, cyber security and cyber compliance failures compromise the warfighter, national security, and could result in hefty fines and penalties, the loss of export privileges, and even imprisonment.

This unique half-day seminar will examine the ways companies are most frequently compromised by hackers (whether financially motivated or state-sponsored), security best practices to prevent a breach, and how failures to identify, control, and track military and dual-use data in IT systems expose the A&D industry to risk of illegal exports. The seminar will discuss best practices for mitigating against cyber security threats and cyber compliance failures.
