Bid Protests for Federal Government Contractors

This presentation answers some critical questions that Government contractors need to ask before they file a bid protest.

- How does the process work?
- How long does it take?
- Who may protest? Who may intervene?
- Is a bid protest worth your time and money?
- What does it take to win a bid protest?

GUEST SPEAKER: J. Dale Gipson is a corporate, transactional lawyer who represents government contractors. Mr. Gipson has extensive experience advising clients about mergers and acquisitions, corporate restructuring, and general contract matters. Mr. Gipson regularly assists federal contractors in the structuring and negotiation of joint ventures and teaming agreements. Mr. Gipson advises clients on a range of federal procurement issues, including bid protests, export controls, compliance issues, small business issues (including, 8(a), WOSB, SDVOSB, HUBZone, and affiliation matters), terminations, suspensions and debarments, and data rights.

Mr. Gipson has successfully represented clients before the U.S. Government Accountability Office, the SBA Office of Hearings and Appeals, and the Armed Services Board of Contract Appeals.

Tracy Marion represents government contractors in all aspects of the government-contractor relationship, including advising clients about the Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR) and defending contractors in adversarial proceedings such as bid protests. Mr. Marion's government practice includes representing national and international governmental agencies in domestic and international arbitrations.

Reasonable accommodations for persons with Disabilities will be made if requested at least two weeks in advance. Contact: Magdaline Braxton Staff Assistant, 225 Church Street NW, Huntsville AL 35801 (256-824-6422).
